Indulge in the enchanting world of pop-folk music with Brad & Kate, a mesmerizing duo led by the harmonious partnership of Kate and Brad Myers. This husband-and-wife pair will captivate the audience with their genuine charm and dynamic performance. With roots firmly planted in the heartlands, their organic following across Iowa and the Midwest is a testament to the irresistible allure of their music. Their soulful melodies and heartfelt lyrics will tell stories of love, life, and the journey in between. <http://www.bradandkate.com/>

Spencer Braly is a Texas-born, Iowa-based singer songwriter. Blending the storytelling he learned from years in barrooms, attitude from time in punk bands and a sense of humor about two shades darker than grey, Spencer writes songs about love and death, scars and lies, busted hearts and sad goodbyes.

A steward of the road and a custodian of its tales, Casey Joe Collins maintains the country's story. A well-worn guitar and a pen and paper is all he needs to chronicle these blacktop novellas. A songwriter's songwriter, Casey Joe's songbook is vast, yet polished. A body of work replete with characters, some real and some imagined, as colorful as the tattoos that adorn his working class hands. <https://www.caseyjocollins.com/>

Robert Deitch is a singer/songwriter, born in Iowa and honed in Nashville. He is currently a music row staff writer, who has written over 20 songs that have been cut by other artists. Robert writes meaningful, image filled songs that provide the listener a vivid story experience. His voice can be described as blue collar smooth, yet gritty. Like a fine bourbon, with a hint of gravel dust. Think Chris Stapleton meets Vince Gill.

Ryne Doughty is a Folk/Americana singer-songwriter out of Des Moines, IA, whose music is deeply rooted in the inspiration of his salvation and real life stories of love, loss, work, and play. His stripped down, earthy sound is directly influenced by the small, rural town where he was born and raised. The hard-working, simple living, and friendly way of life of the Midwest shines through his music that is understated yet complex and rich with simplicity. <https://www.rynedoughty.net/>

Reggie Greenlaw is a singer/ songwriter/ musician living in Ames, Iowa playing guitar, hammered dulcimer, and mandolin. Folk, Americana, Alt-Country, Trad, Bluegrass, Original – Reggie believes performances don't need to be confined to one genre of music. They should be as original as the audiences. <https://reggiegreenlaw.com/>

Des Moines-based singer/songwriter, Patresa Hartman, has rich, blues voice, serves as the vehicle for thoughtful, poetic lyrics. A percussive guitar player, Hartman's signature finger picking style is rhythmic foundation for soulful melodies that hint at contemporary country and folk. But Hartman's roots in gospel and soul become apparent in her turns behind the piano. <https://www.patresahartman.com/>

The High Crest's style comes from an organic hybrid of multiple genres: folk, rock, roots, blues, bluegrass, country. Their music is a blend of dueling guitars and powerful harmonies infused with soulful harmonica, resonator guitar and the groove of djembe hand drum. The High Crest pumps out a groovy blend that is distinct and authentic. <https://www.thehighcrest.com/>

Hailing from the lively city of Des Moines, IA, Andrew Hoyt is the real deal—a singer/songwriter with roots deeply intertwined in the vibrant heart of the Midwest. He's all about embracing his artistic side and isn't afraid to let his creative juices flow. By the way, he's also a rockstar K-5 vocal music teacher who's on a mission to inspire the next generation. A notable facet of Andrew's musical journey centers around his partnership with the prestigious Hawaiian KoAloha ukulele. This instrument has become his signature. Recently, Andrew has been signed by the distinguished indie label, Golden Bear Records. <https://andrewhoymusic.com/>

A husband, father, guitar picker, and singer/songwriter, Royce Johns has been pickin' and grinnin' for the last decade. “I feel like I’ve learned a lifetime of lessons in the last decade since starting my musical journey, but the further down the road I get, I feel like I’m only getting started. With all the love and support my home state of Iowa has shown me, it makes me never want to leave. And I don’t think I ever could. No matter where this journey takes me, I’ll always have a 515 area code.” <https://www.roycejohms.com/>

Fred Love is an Americana singer, songwriter and guitarist from Ames, Iowa. A native of an isolated farm town, Fred has always thought of his music as an extension of the most primal forms in the American songbook. His direct blend of country, folk and blues with a DIY/punk delivery creates a ruggedly original cowpunk approach that taps into the hearts of the wanderers, misfits and strangers that haunt America’s rural interior. <https://fredlove.info/>

Rob Lumbard is Blues/Folk based musician and his finger-picking style comes from listening to Blind Blake, Doc Watson, and the prewar Chicago Blues players. He is an honorary member of the Central Iowa Blues Society, The Iowa Blues Hall of Fame, The Iowa Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. <http://roblumbard.com/>

Multi-award winning songwriter Jordan Messerole is an Americana musician from Iowa's capital city. From the depths of his Iowa roots, Messerole masterfully blends the sounds of his guitar with engaging lyrics, and often a harmonica, to tell gritty American tales that are bound to evoke emotion from all his listeners. <http://www.jordanmessengerole.com/>

Wally Neal is a puzzled pilgrim, carrying a wild, drifting collection of verse and 6+12 string fingerstyle guitar. Neal's most recent release is with the psych-soul-roots collective Bitter Canyon, recorded in his living room, aka The Solarium, in Ames, IA.

Chris Patterson is a hometown Iowa singer songwriter who's lived and played all over the US and Europe playing venues like The Bluebird Cafe in Nashville, SXSW and The Americana Music Festival. He writes songs about the road he's traveled and the many, many people he's met along the way. He's prolific and thoughtful, while giving light to the darkness that lives in us all.

Sara Routh is a Des Moines native who's traveled around the world bringing her music to audiences across the globe. Her engaging spirit on stage draws the listener to pause, sit and emotionally experience each performance. A strong vocal talent, Routh's ability to balance lyrics, sense of style and rhythm leaves her audiences wanting a return performance. She has been compared to the incredible talents of Ella Fitzgerald and Joni Mitchell. Sara Routh is a musical force of nature who continues to embrace community and life, bringing each reality to song. <https://www.sararouth.com/>

Scott Stilwell writes songs about everyday things. Scott's songs, are in their basic form, folk songs. Rooted in stories, they give glimpses into life - fiction and non-fiction. Based on the concept that art is personal, Stilwell also weaves his own stories into the songs, inviting the listener into a shared experience. Born and raised in Iowa, Scott approaches his songs with a Mid-Western sensibility. Having spent some time in Nashville, his songs also reflect the struggle and heartache that lives in every songwriter. This passion fuels the spirit and initiates the drive to create that "next great song"; frankly, any song will do – because it is what we were born to do.
